True noise has become impolite unless it comes out of a machine. It used to be that the purpose of dining was to talk and talk was usually disputative, but never pompous. Nothing is funnier than a pompous person attempting to establish his personality like a heavy hammer banging away at an idea. It is pleasanter to listen to those new hi-fi machines which make so much noise or to a television late show. The pompous person realizes that his pomposity covers intellectual insecurity and he must keep the act going to he must keep the act going to English language.

Aliens and the Constitution

The status of refugees who have legally entered this country without visas has come up before a federal court of appeals. Undoubtedly the decision will be appealed to the Supreme Court since the majority decision seems slightly in conflict with earlier opinions of the highest court.

After the Hungarian revolt President Eisenhower announced that a certain number of refugees could enter the United States without disturbing the quota or being required to have visas. Congress later backed up this announcement and some 30,000 Hungarians entered the United States under a provision that they did so without complying with any law except that which sanctioned their admission.

Among the refugees were Gyula Paktorovics and his family. Three months after his arrival, immigration authorities began looking into his background and decided he had been a member of the Communist party after 1953 and had concealed the fact. Paktorovies and his family were ordered deported but obtained a writ of habeas corpus. The action against his family was dropped but the attorney general ordered Paktorovics sent to Austria on the grounds that he had no visa and could therefore be deported at the discretion of the attorney general.

The majority decision of the court of appeals holds that a hearing must be held, not so the courts may take over the authority of the attorney general, but so there may be "assurance that the discretion of the attorney general shall be exercised against a background of facts fairly contested in the open." Since Paktorovics entered the United States under an invitation "pursuant to the announced foreign policy of the United States" he is entitled to the due process of the Fifth amendment of the Constitution, else the statute under which he entered is constitutionally questionable, the majority held.

The dissenting opinion of Judge Leonard Moore vigorously argues that the status of refugees entering without visas was similar to that of aliens applying for admission and that the Supreme Court had decided that "the parole of aliens seeking admission . . . was never intended to affect an alien's status (or make him) legally within the United States." Judge Moore emphasizes that he agrees completely "with the majority in their desire to enable the Hungarian refugees to remain in this country" but that the decision is an attempt to replace the discretion of the attorney general as outlined by statute with the discretion of the court.

In fact, a hearing given to Paktorovics probably would not make a great deal of difference to the United States government except insofar as secret pipelines to communist Hungary are concerned. But this decision of the court of appeals seems to indicate that the physical presence of a person within the boundaries of the United States alone endows upon him the protections of the Constitution. This, teamed up with the Supreme Court decision in effect endorsing treaties and executive agreements which permit Americans to be tried by foreign courts, seems to be the pragmatic approach. But is it really a sound interpretation of the Constitution?

Some More 'Blows for Liberty'

John Nance Garner - "Mr. Common Sense," as Franklin Roosevelt called him - expects to have a barbecue Saturday at Uvalde, Texas, with some of his old cronies. Among those invited are James A. Farley and House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Mr. Garner will be 90 on that day.

"The grand old man of politics" was on the public scene in Washington for almost two score years before he retired early in 1941, after he had sworn in Henry A. Wallace as his successor to the vice presidency. He had broken with FDR on the third term issue, but they parted warm personal

Although he was given considerable support for the presidency at two Democratic national conventions, he never coveted the office, "Going to the White House would be just like going to jail for four years," he told friends. In 1932 he assured Roosevelt's nomination by switching to FDR the 46 Texas and 44 California votes pledged to him, and then received the nomination for vice president by acclama-

From the beginning he and Roosevelt differed sharply on a number of issues. He was opposed to huge federal expenditures, the supreme court reorganization bill and recognition of Russia.

"My considered judgment," he told President Roosevelt, "is that the United States will gain nothing by recognizing them and may lose a lot." His biographer, Bascom N. Timmons, in Garner of Texas wrote that Garner "never ceased to think the recognition of Russia was one of the most fateful actions of our history and that we may have bolstered the communists in a time of their greatest weakness."

As vice president, he was one of Washington's most colorful individuals. His little parties in his office became famous for "striking a blow for liberty," which meant taking a drink of whisky. When he was in the House - Prohibition was then the law of the land - he called similar gatherings his "board of education."

John L. Lewis accused Garner in 1939 of leading attempts to modify New Deal labor legislation, and called him a "labor-baiting, poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man." Thereafter, Garner's friends were enthusiastic in forming "Evil Old Man"

"Cactus Jack," almost as famous for his bushy white eyebrows as Lewis was for his black, could plead innocent of labor-baiting and "evil," but not of poker-playing and whiskey-drinking, though no one ever knew him to be intoxicated. Saturday, no doubt, he'll strike another blow or two for liberty.

The Young Men Go West

The satellite nations which have reasonably free access to the West are getting increasingly uncomfortable. Too many capable citizens are packing up and leav-

The latest big name seeker after western asylum is an angry young Polish writer named Marck Hlasko, A product of both nazi and communist domination of his homeland, Illasko is the most popular writer among young Polish readers, has received many prizes, and managed to draw the blind fury of the authorities for writing of the physical and spiritual squalor of Warsaw. He was declared a deviationist, his films were banned and his newspaper closed down. After a seven month stay in the West he announced he would not go home again.

Illasko's defection may not harm the Reds in Poland as much as he may have hoped. The situation had reached a point where the officials had to make a martyr of him or permit unlimited publication. Now that Hlasko is out of their reach, they do not need to make a decision. But other defections have been serious.

The head of the biggest university in East Germany recently moved his family into the western sector after it finally became apparent to him that any form of academic freedom was impossible under Red rule. More than 500 highly trained medical people have left East Germany, The Reds have softened the requirements which made it impossible for a person to practice medicine or enter medical school without dedication to the communist philosophy, but the action seems to have come

Some of the more vague of pseudo-liberals even in this country have maintained that such things as art and science could cross national and ideological boundaries unscathed. A good doctor or a good composer was supposed to be able to create equally well under a dictatorship as under a republic. But the flights from the East negate this theory. It is clear that communism can not stand the truth or heresy of a free literature or science. The Eisenhower team faces a $12 billion deficit. Ike Fighting Heart Disease When a person buys life insurance toalso benefits since his life may be extended day he gets a little more than simple financial protection in the case of his death.

He gets a friend interested in prolonging This friend is called the Life Insurance Medical Research Fund, It is supported by 144 life insurance companies, large and small. Its entire resources are devoted to research in heart disease. During the last year it had a part in supporting over 100 research programs and it has provided $1,086,000 to continue this support next year. Heart disease is the No. 1 killer and of course it is profitable to life insurance companies to prolong life and that also prolongs the payment of premiums and reduces the payment of losses.

NEWSPAPERHICHIVE®___

However, the individual policyholder and his benefit is greater and more important than that of the life insurance company. The research work thus far has brought in a great deal of useful information, according to those directing the program. This information will make possible improvements in the general health of the people, and the advance in the study of heart problems is said to be most encouraging. Some of the leaders in this field are confident they will find a solution ultimately and this in itself is an advance, for only a few years ago most of them agreed that the outlook was hopeless. Thus it appears a person who now buys life insurance may be actually "buying" a few more years in this troubled world that he would otherwise be unable to claim.

For the Republicans it will be great fun, the kind of diversion with which they can reduce some of the pain and discomfiture of their reading of the election returns of the last fortnight. Nor will it require much ingenuity. They need only recall what the Democrats were doing to embarrass them during 20 preceding years.

There were the times, for example, when the Democrats as a disciplined group bring about some abrupt alternated between denouncshifts of posture, as recent ing the Republicans as spendthrifts, and scorning them as pennypinchers, as have the responsibility and they flailed the Republicanthey will tend to strike an at- made budget bills. Reductions in

From The Ogden, Utah.

From the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington comes word that the organization will present a bill of particulars to the next congress asking for reduction in some of the benefits American veterans enjoy. This is fair warning to veterans organizations, which, we may be certain, will take challenge.

The chamber is giving particular scrutiny to the program under which hospital care is provided for veterans whose injury or illness has no connection whatever with military service. These veterans, it is said, now occupy about two-thirds of the more than 120,000 beds in Veterans Administration hospitals. The chamber questions the validity of many of the affidavits of inability to pay submitted by veterans suffering from conditions not connected with their military duty.

The chamber announcement and expected veteran reaction means another national battle for public opinion will be waged. Taking into account the amount of good will American veterans enjoy, the chamber will start the battle as the under dog.

In Good Taste Yule Cards A Problem For Women

BY EMILY POST Dear Mrs. Post: I am a businesswoman and have a great many business acquaintances. Each passing year receive more and more Christmas cards. Last year I received quite a few Christmas cards from people to whom I did not send cards. I would like to know if it is necessary to send them cards this year Answer: Christmas card sending is a friendly and charming custom but to send vast quantities of cards to people one hardly knows I think reduces their value and the pleasure of receiving them.

TELY MEW, DEGIDEDLY DIFFERENT!

Chevrolet shatters precedent beautifully with a completely new car for the second year in a row. It's new and different in its vastly increased areas of visibility, in the roominess of its new Body by Fisher, in the way it rides and holds the road -even in the sheen of its finish. This is your kind of car!

Chevy's new all over! In the fresh slant of its Slimline design. In the spacious comfort of its beautiful Body by Fisher. New from the graceful sweep of its Vista-Panoramic windshield to its safer, softer riding Tyrex cord tires. There's a new, peppier Hi-Thrift 6 engine that delivers up to 10% greater gas economy. A wide choice of quick-sprinting V8's. Betterthan-ever suspensions. Bigger brakes for safer stops. A new

Magic-Mirror finish that keeps its shine without wax or polish for up to three years.

And Chevy's new in a way that's decidedly different-unlike any car you've seen. Its new style is shaped to the modern American taste for design that reflects function as well as good form. Drop by your Chevrolet dealer's and see how beautifully the '59 Chevrolet combines fresh, fine design with traditional practicality.

Taipei - The Formosa provincial government warned the citizens of nationalist China today that they are forbidden to speak Japanese to each other.

The warning said violators of the ban should be "corrected" by anyone overhearing but did not say how far the admonition should go.

A formosa-born minister in the nationalist cabinet complained that some of his people were still communicating in Japanese. Use of the STEVE CANYON language was prohibited after World war II as part of the nationalist government's campaign to solidify its hold on the island, which Japan had occupied for more than half a century previously.

Cowpokes Will Have Fun By ERNIE BUSHMILLER Every Day on This Broncolog

BY CAPPY DICK

Like to play cowboy? You can have a rodeo every day in your own back yard if you will make yourself a broncolog. You will need a short length of log some strong rope and four posts or trees that are located as shown by the little circles in Figure 1. The log need not be more than four feet long. It should be just big enough in circumference for you to straddle and sit on comfortably. If there is By MILT LEFF a choice of logs, choose the one that looks something like the body of a bronco. You can give the horse a tail by unravelling some rope and tacking it to one end of the log. A mane may be made and attached in the same way. Two heavy ropes of equal length must be swung under strong supports. the log, one at the front end the log for a saddle. Make

What do women want in the daily newspaper...but not on television?

ANSWER: ADVERTISING. In a survey by Northwestern University among housewives, 92 per cent said they wanted newspapers with advertising. By comparison, 61 per cent said they would prefer television without advertising. This receptive attitude toward the daily newspaper is one of the greatest assets that an advertiser could ever want. And it is one of the big reasons why advertisers place more money in the daily newspaper than in radio. television, magazines and outdoor combined!

shop and the Appleton pharmacy (508 W. College). The feeling is that the Bobcats will have to average about 2,000 fans a game to make a success of their franchise. Unlike most other pro athletes, many of the hockey players hold additional jobs during the season, we're told. The unfortunate thing about the inaugural season is the Bobcats' inability to use the ice for two vital pre-season practice weeks. Other baptismal events in the multi-purpose arena preempted the team's space and time. It could mean the 'Cats will take their lumps in early games.

The Los Angeles Rams were caught Sunday violating the National Football league's electronics regulation. A short wave sender was installed beneath the Ram bench with a receiver attached to the helmet of defensive back Jim Jones. After that electronics ruckus of a year or so ago, the NFL banned the use of anything except field telephones. The officials immediately blew the whistle on the Rams' designs, but other than that, nothing has been heard about the incident.

In the brain's hypothalamic region, the appetite control center acts, in normal people, to increase your appetite . . reduce your appetite.

Eating any good protein, car-bohydrate food 30 to 60 minutes before your regular meal can help you curb your appetite.
Obviously, the less you crave food . . . the less you eat!

Follow The Profile Bread Plan To Help Control Weight

Eating two slices of Profile Bread 30 minutes before lunch or dinner should appease your appetite. So the average person can avoid gaining weight. That is the essence of the Profile Bread

Plan for controlling weight.
Then there are the people who find it possible to reduce by one means or another, but find it difficult to control their weight after reducing.

Thus, may start gaining weight again. The simplest way to weight control is through appetite control. That's where the Profile Bread Plan comes in. To help you appease appetite.

to avoid gaining weight.

Four slices of Profile Bread cost about a nickel. Many ordinary wafers, pills, and tablets, used for hunger appeasement, cost up to twice as much. Thus, the Profile Bread Plan can help curb appetite for less money. More Complete Protein For Health Actually, ouncefor ounce, Profile Bread gives you about 24% more complete protein than ordinary white or whole wheat bread. Because it contains the protein "booster" from milklactalbumin.

4 slices supply about as much complete protein as 1 egg. Note chart below for vitamin and mineral content.

The more complete protein content of Profile Bread is of especial value to children who need more complete protein per pound of body weight than adults.

Incidentally, be sure to eat a well-balanced diet for sufficient vitamins and minerals.

Newfoundland Study The bulletin commented on an experiment in Newfoundland where bread and flour were enriched and margarine was fortified with Vitamin A. After four years, the improved health in Newfoundland was reflected in vital statistics showing total mortality declining from 12.1 to 10.5 per 1,000 population, infant mortality dropping from 102 to 61 per 1,000 births and deaths from tuberculosis declining 25 per cent.

"After four years," the report notes, "signs of malnutrition had become less prevalent and much of the apathy and listlessness which had characterized the population was no longer evident. The Pure Cane Sugar from Hawaii

Here's something different and delicious for you. With bright red cranberries peeking from every slice, it catches the very flavor and feeling of Thanksgiving. It's the kind of home baking that helps make Thanksgiving dinner such a wonderful family occasion.

For special goodness, give it the magic touch of high-protein King Midas Flour. The extra protein in King Midas works like magic to lighten the texture and lift the flavor of everything you bake.
